REPORT

[To accompany H. Res. 271]

The Committee on Agriculture, to whom was referred the resolution (H. Res. 271) recognizing the importance of the blueberry industry to the United States and supporting the designation of July 2021 as National Blueberry Month, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon with amendments and recommends that the resolution as amended be agreed to.

The amendments are as follows:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

That the House of Representatives—

- (1) supports the designation of National Blueberry Month;
 - (2) recognizes the contributions of United States growers and their families; and
 - (3) recognizes that purchasing blueberries grown in the United States supports farmers, jobs, and the economy.

Amend the preamble to read as follows:

Whereas blueberries are a native North American fruit, first used fresh and dried in food and medicines by Native Americans who introduced them to early colonists, which led to new uses and forms, including frozen, establishing traditions still observed today;

Whereas wild blueberries continue to be managed and harvested in Maine by farmers, including the Wabanaki, as a native, naturally occurring crop;

Whereas the pioneering work conducted in New Jersey by Elizabeth White and Dr. Frederick Coville, a Department of Agriculture botanist, in the early 1900s to domesticate wild lowbush blueberries resulted in the development of the hybrid for cultivated highbush blueberries;

Whereas because of these early efforts, highbush blueberries are large, sweet, juicy berries that can be commercially produced and shipped, allowing them to become an important United States agricultural industry;

Whereas wild blueberries—

- (1) are small and sweet; and
 - (2) are not planted, but still grow and are harvested where they have naturally occurred for thousands of years;

Whereas highbush and wild blueberries have a total harvested area estimated at more than 110,000 acres and are produced in 48 States by nearly 16,000 farms;

Whereas blueberry production in the United States increased, with particular growth in the past two years, to reach a harvest of 695,600,000 pounds in 2020; Whereas blueberries are low in fat, and a source of fiber, vitamins, and minerals; Whereas blueberries are being studied to examine the role they may play in promoting good health in areas such as cardiovascular health, brain health, exercise, insulin response, and gut health; and Whereas highbush blueberries are harvested in the United States from April through September, with the harvest reaching its peak in July: Now, therefore, be it

BRIEF EXPLANATION

This resolution, as reported out of Committee, recognizes the importance of American blueberry growers to our economy and supports the designation of July 2021 as National Blueberry Month.

PURPOSE AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The United States is the largest producer of blueberries, accounting for over half of global production. A native North American fruit, wild lowbush blueberries were domesticated by American researchers, ultimately leading to the development of the hybrid for cultivated highbush blueberries. The growers of highbush blueberries generate more than $4.7 billion in annual economic impact and are produced in 48 states by more than 14,000 farms across approximately 102,700 acres. This translates to more than $12.7 million flowing into the U.S. economy every day of every year.

Blueberries are considered “superfoods” because they are full of antioxidants and provide many nutrients while also being low in calories. H. Res. 271 recognizes the importance of the blueberry growers and their families to the United States.
